

The size of the Romahome/Honda combination makes for ideal town driving; a point worth considering as few people are able to get away from it all fifty two weeks a year. So when you are not zipping around the countryside on holiday, think of your Romahome as a roomy estate car. Or a truck. Or a minibus capable of seating your family and its' luggage.

Rates on cross-channel ferries are lower for smaller vehicles. And think about the parking space that is always just that little too small. Not anymore. You don't have to be big to be beautiful!

We started from scratch and came up with the simple answer to most people's reservations about motor-caravans. Because not everyone holds a HGV licence, the Romahome was designed to be compact, and, combined with the Honda TN7 truck, more like driving an ordinary car than the usually clumsy alternative. Holidays should be fun — not hard work.

A get-away-from-it-all motor caravan should be exactly that. Not limited by its size and where it can go.

The Honda TN7 Chassis Cab, on which the Romahome is based, has been proved over a number of years in Japan, Australia and The Far East.
